

A large empty rectangular area is enclosed by a green border, occupying most of the page. This area is intended for text or content. The border is a thin green line that runs parallel to the outer red border of the page.

